All the Missing Things

Published by Diogenes as All die verschwundenen Dinge
Original title: All die verschwundenen Dinge

The little plastic dinosaur – gone. Karl's left goalkeeper's glove – missing. The new umbrella cover – lost without a trace. Karl is always losing things. ›You have to start looking after your things better!‹ say his parents. That is what Kasper says too. Kasper is Karl's best friend – a hand puppet who comes to life when he puts his hand in it. But that does not help Karl. Things come to a head when he loses Kasper in the park. Karl sets out on an expedition for somewhere, there must exist a place where all the lost things end up. And Karl does not mean the lost property office. One night, under a full moon, his little dog Timo puts him on the right track…
An adventurous story about how you sometimes have to lose (almost) everything to find the thing that's most important.

Praise

All the Missing Things

»Literally a dream of a story, thoughtfully told, about the independent life of things and the secret meaning of searching.« – Die Welt, Berlin

Lukas Hartmann

»Lukas Hartmann immerses himself totally in his characters. He has a particular interest in figures who are in danger of being swallowed up by history. He is driven by a strong sense of justice, empathy and meticulousness.« – Beatrice Eichmann-Leutenegger / Neue Zürcher Zeitung

»Lukas Hartmann develops great poetic power, full of sensibility and eloquent silence.« – Neue Zürcher Zeitung

»Lukas Hartmann has an incredible affinity to the world of children.« – Carol Rosa / Berner Zeitung

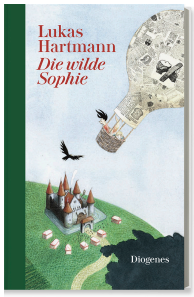

»Lukas Hartmann's ability to see the world through a child's eyes is outstanding.« – Hits for Kids, Gustavsburg

»A virtuoso of the historical novel.« – Charles Linsmayer / NZZ am Sonntag, Zurich

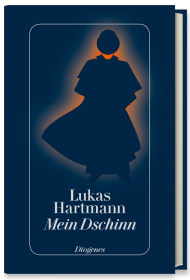

»Lukas Hartmann knows how to write history in a way that puts the present in a different light.« – Augsburger Allgemeine
