Magpie on the Gallows

»A riveting read that arouses our curiosity not only in Bruegel, but in the era in which he lived.« – Hermann Wallmann / Hessischer Rundfunk

A young boy secretly observes an horrific scene: people being brought to the gallows by the henchmen of the Spanish Inquisition, cheered on by a mob of voracious onlookers. The young boy preserves the impression in a sketch that, years later, will form the basis of a world-famous painting: Magpie on the Gallows.

At a still early age, the Dutch artist Pieter Bruegel aroused the suspicion and attention of the authorities, and was thrown into jail for paintings deemed to have ridiculed the Church. However, his genius was also recognised: Cardinal Granvelle, the influential governor appointed by Philip II of Spain, allows the young Bruegel to be educated as a painter in Pieter Coecke's atelier in Antwerp. From that time onwards, Pieter's life is in the hands of the cruel Church luminary, who remains in the background pulling all of the strings.

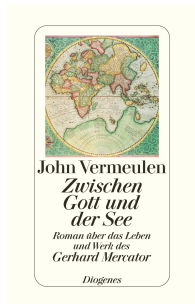

A well-researched novel that transports the reader, with extraordinary vividness, into the midst of Pieter Bruegel's life and work and into the most turbulent and horrible chapter in Dutch history. A book that merits comparison with de Coster's Legends of Ulenspiegel.

John Vermeulen was born in Antwerp in 1941. He died on August 23, 2009. Vermeulen was a journalist, sailor, and a writer who published his first novel at the age of fourteen. He has written some 25 works to date, including thrillers, science fiction, children's books, erotica and historical novels. He is the author of film and television scripts, plays and short stories. Vermeulen has received many awards for his writing.
