Diogenes

Why doesn't Germany have Wine Kings instead of Wine Queens? Should we really drink beer with our potato soup? Do you prefer your cold meats fine or just regular? Writing with gusto and aplomb, precision and whimsy, Otto Jägersberg's short prose not only explores the culinary arts but also touches on local German traditions, taking a curious peek around the neighbourhood, the cemetery and into the boudoir. As an observer and humourist, Jägersberg turns his eagle eye on the realities of German life – in the forest and the city.

Praise

Otto Jägersberg

»How does Otto Jägersberg write? Well, you can enjoy his lines of poetry and prose in sips, but you may become tipsy quite fast in the process.« – Frank Lorentz / Welt am Sonntag

»It is a pleasure to follow this wandering rascal.« – Nils Jensen / Buchkultur, Vienna

»[Jägersberg's] punchlines have something so sublimely casual to them, as though the comedy were springing forth organically from the depicted events, or rather, more frequently, from the language.« – Frank Schäfer / taz, Berlin

»Jägersberg's texts are poetry in themselves, making the well-known seem entirely fresh and new again.« – Frank Schäfer / Die Zeit, Hamburg

»We need the poets' gaze on the world in order to understand and bear it. Jägersberg has this gaze.« – Elke Heidenreich

Otto Jägersberg, born in Hiltrup (Westphalia) in 1942, worked as a book trader, antiquarian and printer in Berlin, Zurich and Stierstadt. Jägersberg is a freelance writer and filmmaker and lives in Baden-Baden.
