Poland in the summer of 1939: the threat of war hangs in the air like a storm cloud over the picturesque countryside. Fifteen-year-old Krzys, having his first love affair, bids a wistful farewell to his childhood memories of the country summers: Sunday afternoons in his grandmother's sun-soaked living room, pony riding with the story-telling stableboy, summer outings in the country. He has a vague premonition that the Poland of his childhood will soon be a thing of the past. Thus the end of Krzys' childhood and the end of a Polish era approach, and Krzys just manages to catch their shadow. This novel, which was published in Poland for the first time in 1976, is full of delicate poetry and wistful, nostalgic pictures reminiscent of scenarios by Thomas Mann.

Praise

The Shadow Catcher

›Delicately drawn ... subtly artful ... Mr. Szczypiorski eloquently evokes the purity and intensity of this young mind as well as its finely wrought complexity.« – The Wall Street Journal, New York

›Szczypiorski's spare evocative prose ... takes us inside the heart of his young protagonist and makes the aches of that heart all too real.« – The Washington Post

»His narrative style is calm and leisurely, yet pacy; his writing is composed, but always with wit and vigour.« – Marcel Reich-Ranicki / Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung

Andrzej Szczypiorski (1928 – 2000) was born in Warsaw, took part in the city’s uprising against German occupation in 1944 and was subsequently sent to Sachsenhausen concentration camp. After the war, he worked as an author and publisher and became a member of the executive board of the Polish PEN Club and the Writer’s Association. In December 1981, he was interned in a camp and remained a prisoner there until spring 1982. In 1989, he was chosen as a candidate by Solidarnosc and elected to the Polish Senate by the people. He received the Austrian »State Award for European Literature« and the »Order of Merit of the Federal Republic of Germany«.
