Diogenes

The story of the Austrian Rudi Friemel and the Spaniard Marga Ferrer who met during the Spanish Civil War, who were repeatedly separated by events and who were finally able to legalise their union under the most impossible conditions: Rudi has been a prisoner in the Auschwitz concentration camp since 1942, and in 1944 Marga is able to visit him for one day in the death camp in order to marry him. A glimmer of hope or a cruel piece of cynicism on the part of the dictators? In any case, an incredible occurrence that means a lot not only to the bride and groom. It is to have its consequence for Auschwitz.

A moving book about hope and despair, the defeats of half a century. A book in which the emphasis is on both love and trust – to the limits of human endurance.

Praise

Erich Hackl

»Erich Hackl's concise and hauntingly dense works of prose have gained him a huge audience and great success. At the bottom of his efforts are usually some forgotten beings, victims of our century's cruel history, with their authentic albeit not exactly remembered biography. Here Hackl, the Austrian author, overly sensitized perhaps because of his own country's extreme insensitivities, steps in and tries to bring about an act of belated justice and redemption. This obviates the question whether Hackl is a fiction writer or a historian, a lawyer of the »small peoples« or a missionary voice of human dignity: he is all of these, and ideally they all add up to make a writer.« – Erich Wolfgang Skwara / World Literature Today, New York

»A masterful and authoritative chronicler.« – Michael Opitz / Deutschlandradio Berlin

»The name Erich Hackl has become a trademark for wonderfully sensitive real-life stories unique in contemporary German literature.« – Tobias Becker / Kulturspiegel, Hamburg

»Erich Hackl's narrative is masterful and compelling.« – Der Tagesspiegel, Berlin

»One of Austria's virtuoso masters of language [...] who has done more to correct our image of history than a dozen historians put together.« – Thomas Rothschild / Die Presse, Vienna
