Diogenes

»Los Angeles, the Big Orange, lots of segments around nothing. In such segments he had spent his autumn. How green was this autumn.« Loetscher's melancholy satire revolves around the theme of »autumn« in many ways: the season in a landscape between desert and ocean in which, strictly speaking, there is no autumn; autumn in the protagonist's life; and, ultimately, the autumn of a civilisation.

Praise

Hugo Loetscher

»Hugo Loetscher is a wonderful narrator whose formulation of weighty thoughts is as light as a feather.« – Sonntags Zeitung, Zurich

»Punchlines, quirky humour, startling observations, witty comments – there's never a moment of boredom with Hugo Loetscher.« – Jürg Altwegg / Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung

Hugo Loetscher (1929 – 2009) was one of Switzerland's most famous writers with novels such as Sewage and The Immune Man. In his role as journalist, he travelled to Latin America, Southeast Asia and the USA regularly. He always held a particular interest in photography. Hugo Loetscher, who lived in Zurich, was a visiting lecturer at universities in Switzerland, the USA, Germany and Portugal; and a member of the Darmstadt Academy for Language and Poetry. In 1992, he was awarded the ›Schiller Prize‹ by Switzerland's Schiller Foundation.
