Diogenes

Book factsheet

Tim Krohn
Irina's Book

Published by Diogenes as Irinas Buch der leichtfertigen Liebe
Original title: Irinas Buch der leichtfertigen Liebe

Contemporary Literature
176 pages
11.3 × 18 × 1.2 cm
February 2010

World rights are handled by Diogenes

Dunja, a Russian woman living in Paris, believes she is sending a fax to her husband in Moscow – how astonished she would be to know it has arrived instead at the home of his ex-mistress, Eva, in Sweden. The misdirected fax triggers turmoil in the lives and minds of the current, and erstwhile, lovers. When Eva decides to fly to Paris, a domino-stone effect of misunderstandings is set in motion.
Proof once again that the world is ruled by imagination, not willpower, that the erotic reigns supreme in the mind – and that love is a magical, complicated thing.
When a flirtation results in a book, expect a story rich in erotic errors and confusion.

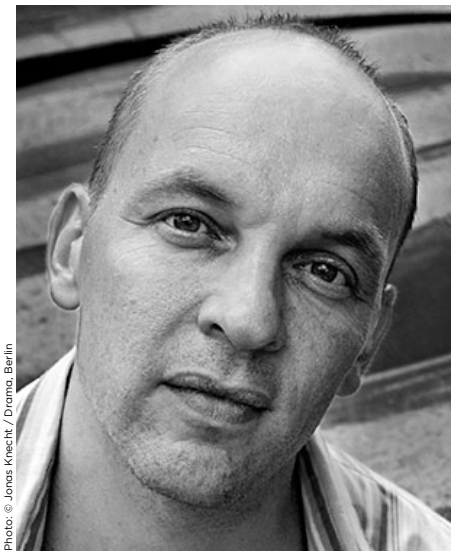

Photo: © Jonas Knecht / Drama, Berlin

Tim Krohn, born in the Nordrhein-Westfalen region of Germany in 1965, grew up in Glarus, a town in the Swiss Alps. He now lives as a writer in Santa Maria Val Müstair. He has written plays for the theatre and radio as well as novels. President of the Swiss Society of Authors from 1998 until 2001, Tim Krohn has won various prizes including the ›Conrad Ferdinand Meyer Prize‹.