Praise

Dear Luca

»Dear Luca is a touching, well-rounded, tender and unbelievably captivating book.« – AP - Associated Press GmbH, Frankfurt

»A sensitively drawn scenario of love and disappointed expectations.« – Nordkurier, Neubrandenburg

These letters are meant for a red biscuit tin rather than for their addressee. Otherwise Simone would never commit to paper that which she dares to reveal in them: The story of a great love and an equally great insult, and an attempt to turn her life around. Suddenly the memories seem to be forcing their way onto the page, transporting reader and writer alike into a state of heightened tension, which only begins to abate as the psychological drama is revealed and the pain that has been kept under wraps for so long is acknowledged. An artfully constructed and gradual escalation into a familial worst case scenario – with so many comical and moving moments, that the reader doesn't know whether to laugh or to cry.

Martina Borger, born in Bavaria in 1956, worked as a journalist, script editor and film critic, before turning to screenwriting. She has worked as a storyliner and head writer on several tv series.
